Carter Presidential Library Update

News20-08

May 7, 2020

Even though the shelter-in-place order has been lifted in Georgia, the Jimmy Carter Presidential Library and Museum, a federal facility under the National Archives, remains closed. We are following federal guidelines and will reopen when we believe it is safe for our staff and our visitors.

In the meantime, we are working on hosting virtual events. You can keep up with those on our Facebook, Twitter and Instagram feeds.

Thank you for your understanding.

From Our Director

All of us at the Jimmy Carter Presidential Library and Museum miss being able to welcome you into our museum and research room. While this isn't the springtime we envisioned, we remain committed to finding new ways to work together.

During this very trying time, we know that you face unique challenges. The staff of the Carter Presidential Library and Museum and I would like you to know that, even though we are closed, we are here for you.

We are answering your research questions daily and helping you navigate the catalog and our digital library. There are new educational resources available to assist teachers and students. And every day you can find interesting facts and photos on our social media platforms, even a virtual tour of the museum or scavenger hunt.

As has been said so many times, we are all in this together, so let's stay connected. We are just a click away. Check out our website and follow us on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram.

Stay safe and healthy.

COMING: International Paint Pals Exhibit

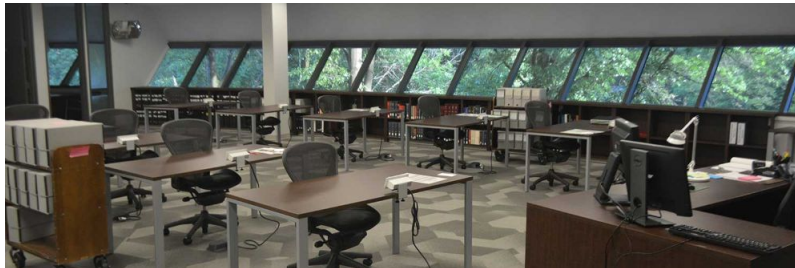

For 25 years, International Paint Pals has involved more than 200,000 kids from as young as 5 up to the age of 19 from 125 countries in art projects promoting peace, friendship, and human rights. Founder Linden Longino described the organization's mission this way: "Children everywhere have natural seeds of tolerance and peace in their minds and hearts. Our goal is to nourish these seeds." One of the ways to do that is through art.
